

Taken From Their Families

Japanese American Incarceration on Angel Island During World War II

Host a Traveling Exhibit from AIISF!

Taken From Their Families: Japanese American Incarceration on Angel Island During World War II explores the events and policies that led to the incarceration of Japanese Americans during the war and presents stories from 24 individuals from Hawai'i and the West Coast whose lives were forever changed after December 7, 1941.

Taken From Their Families: Japanese American Incarceration on Angel Island During World War II was funded, in part, by a grant from the U.S. Department of the Interior, National Park Service, Japanese American Confinement Sites Grant Program. It was developed by the Angel Island Immigration Station in partnership with California State Parks, and it is co-curated by Grant Din, Edward Tepporn, Casey Dexter-Lee, and Russell Nauman. Contributing research was conducted by Marissa Shoji. Special thanks to the Japanese Cultural Center of Hawai'i, National Japanese American Historical Society, Japanese American National Museum, Densho, and the families featured in the exhibition for lending their support with this project.
